

an exercise in integrated apophenia and introspection

This oracle is an electronic implementation of "A Practicum on Divination via Cleromancy" written by Hebeloma Crustuliniforme (2019). It projects the future onto a fourteen-dimensional space, in which each axis is associated with a spectrum of a personality trait ranging from vice to virtue, for example, cowardice to courage. The 364 horoscopes are expressed in terms of interactions between a pair of individuals, selected randomly from the seven youths and seven maidens offered to the minotaur, which dwelt in an abandoned, Cretan mine. Readings are available via free, anonymous access at Hebeloma Crustuliniforme suggests that there is a great joy in what others might refer to as a deep self-delusion. She asks the readers' indulgence to share that joy.
